Job Announcement
Local Project Coordinator
February 2008

The California Center for Public Health Advocacy (CCPHA) seeks to hire a Local Policy Coordinator.

The Local Policy Coordinator will help design a new project to support city leaders throughout California in the establishment of local policies that promote healthy eating and physical activity. Job responsibilities include developing tools and materials for city officials and providing training and technical assistance to elected officials.

Necessary qualifications for the position include:

- A minimum of five years of work with elected officials or community organizing experience
- Excellent writing skills
- Training experience and strong public speaking skills
- Ability to travel throughout California
- Ability to work independently and as a member of a team

Bilingual skills, advocacy experience and the capability to work in several communities simultaneously are pluses.

CCPHA is a non-profit, non-partisan organization that raises awareness about public health issues and mobilizes communities to promote the establishment of effective health policies. CCPHA has led successful and groundbreaking efforts to curb the dual epidemics of obesity and diabetes by advocating for state and local policy reforms to promote healthy eating and physical activity. CCPHA regards the resolution of these epidemics to be a social justice issue and seeks a Local Policy Coordinator with a similar perspective.

Salary will be commensurate with experience. CCPHA provides strong employee and dependent medical, dental, and vision benefits and 403(b) benefits. The desired location for this position is Davis; however, location may be negotiable.

To apply, send a cover letter describing relevant experience and desired salary, a resume and a writing sample by February 29, 2008 to:
